

Subl
A New Ballad, called,
The Protestants Prophecie.

Wherein is plainly set forth the Difficulty of Clearing our Native Country, of those that Infect us, called P A P I S T S. To the Tune of, When Courtousness out of England will run.

Come hearken to me whilst the truth I do write,
For in telling of Lies, I take no Delight;
No man would I tell you, since I have begun;
When Popery out of this Nation will run.

When Bishops do Money refuse and deny,
When the Monuments top shall reach to the sky:
When the Moon is as big, & more bright then the then Popery out of this Nation will run. (Sun,

When ye shall see two Donks Payson the Fryers,
Because they are both Decentful and Lvers:
When the Subjects of England shall all be as one,
then Popery out of this Nation will run.

And when ye shall see the Duke of Lorrain,
Be begg'd to receive his Country again:
When the French King surrenders all that he hath won,
then Popery out of this Nation will run.

When you see a Primrose swallow a whale,
And when the salt Sea shall be filled with Ale:
When men shall rejoyce that they're broke and undone:
then Popery, &c.

When there is not a whore to be found in this Land,
And dumb men shall speak that you may understand:
When ye read of Latins made e're the world was bethen Popery, &c. (gun,

Vhen silver & gold shall be nothing esteem'd,
& christian-slaves by fair words be redeem'd
when Sack down the Channels like water shall run
then Popery out of this Land will be gone.

When Jews shall Eat Swines-flesh as other men do,
And High-way-men they shall be honest and true:
When the Pope can forgive us our sins e'ry one,
then Popery, &c.

And when ye shall see the Sun rise in the South,
And Men shall Eat Victuals that has not a Mouth:
When the Stars from the sky shall fall every one,
then Popery, &c.

When Apples and Pears shall grow on the Byers,
And Meat shall be Roasted without any Fires:
And Poor Men to Prisons for Maintenance come,
Then Popery, &c.

When the Fish of the sea shall fly in the ay,
& Men shall wear wiggs that are made without hair
when all sorts of silks shall by Donkeys be spun,
then Popery, &c.

When Horses shall Run without any Leggs,
When Pens shall draw Carts, and Oxen lay Eggs:
When gamesters refuse to take what they have won
then Popery, &c.

When News-Mongers they do refuse the great gain
That comes by their pamphlets, though they are pro-(phane:
And women at Christmings they hold their tongue,
then Popery out of this Land will be gone.
